- Mansour al-Essawi, Minister of Interior
- Mohamed al-Gendy, Minister of Justice
- Fathy El-Baradei, Minister of Housing
- Sayed Meshel, Minister of Military Industries
- Samir Sayad, Minister of Industry and Internal Trade
- Gouda Abdel Khalek, Minister of Social Solidarity
- Mohsen al-Noomany, Minister for National Development
- Maged George, Minister of Environment
- Ashraf Hatem, Minister of Health
- Hassan Younis, Minister of Electricity
- Mounir Fakhry Abdel Nour, Minister of Tourism
- Emad Abou Ghazy, Minister of Culture and Antiquities
- Ahmed el-Brens, Minister of Labour and Migration
- Abdullah al-Husseiny, Minister of Islamic Endowments
- Hussein al-Atfy, Minister of Water Resources and Irrigation
- Ahmed al-Borai, Minister of Manpower

SSIS buildings overrun: The appointment of General Mansour al-Essawi as the new Minister of Interior came as thousands of protestors stormed at least six State Security Investigative Service (SSIS) buildings across Cairo and Alexandria on Saturday. Approximately 2,500 protestors swarmed past military forces guarding the SSIS headquarters in Nasr City, according to state media, where they found rooms full of shredded documents as well as surviving official documents. The military eventually took control of the building after peacefully removing protestors and searching them for stolen documents. Reports of security forces burning files at SSIS facilities led protestors to call for the EAF to intervene and assume control of SSIS buildings in Qena, Port Said, Zagazig, Domiati and Tanta, according to media reports. The EAF is reported to be in control of the SSIS buildings in Alexandria and 6th of October, in addition to the Nasr City headquarters.

SCAF responds: Documents taken from SSIS buildings quickly made their way to the web and a new Facebook page shows several dozen documents alleged to have come from the Nasr City HQ. In response, the SCAF released Statement 27 on Facebook today, calling on citizens “to immediately hand over any documents in their possession that belong to the State Security apparatus to the EAF.” The statement warns citizens not circulate the documents via media outlets, “out of a sense of national responsibility, and also to avoid legal liability,” as the documents may endanger national security.

Sharaf to oversee MOI changes: According to Ahram, Sharaf put forward a proposal to separate the state security apparatus from the MOI and the prosecutor general’s office from the ministry of justice. Ahram reports Sharaf’s cabinet will personally oversee a transition of authority from the ministries to the direct oversight of the cabinet.

Official referendum date: The SCAF decreed on Friday the national referendum on constitutional amendments will be held on March 19th, as expected. The referendum will take place from 0800 until 1900, and will be overseen by the Supreme Judicial Committee and “all executive bodies.” In the referendum, Egyptians will vote on amendments to articles 75, 76, 77, 88, 93, 139 and 149, the cancellation of Article 179, and additions to Article 189.

Coptic Demonstration Over Church Attack: Egyptian press reported that thousands of Copts, including two bishops and many priests, staged an open-ended sit-in in front of the State TV building in Cairo on Sunday, calling for the government to immediately re-build the Coptic Church of St. Mina and St. George in Sol Village, Helwan governorate. They also called on the EAF to protect and secure Churches and to punish those who participated in the destruction of the church. Major General Tarek Mahdy told demonstrators he understood Copts’ anger and announced that the EAF will rebuild the church from its own funds. Qadry Abou Hussein, Governor of Helwan, held a meeting on Saturday with the heads of Muslim families of Sol Village. Hussein stated to the press that the families decided to permit the Church to remain in its current location, not to build a Mosque on the premises, and allow Christians to return to the village. A large number of Muslim youth had earlier remained on the site of the destroyed church and had begun calling for building a mosque in its place, as well as the emigration of Coptic families from the village. We spoke with the Bishop of Helwan yesterday; he told us that Copts in his diocese are extremely nervous about the lack of security.

Government Clarifies Wheat Supply Situation: On Saturday, GASC Vice Chairman Noumani Noumani clarified statements last week by General Tantawi on the wheat supply situation by stating that while there are only two months of wheat stocks in country as noted by the General, GASC has a total of five months of wheat requirements locked in through shipments on the water or under contract. GASC (General Authority for Supply of Commodities) will also be purchasing wheat from the local crop in May/June which will add about 3 million tons equivalent to four to five months requirements for subsidized bread production. The recently announced procurement price of LE 350 to LE 360 per ardeb ($397-$408 per metric ton) is 30% above last year’s procurement price and FAS/Cairo believes should permit GASC to reach their purchasing target. However, Noumani did note that GASC needs some $400 million in order to open Letters of Credit for shipments of wheat and vegetable oil in April. He stated the total budgetary outlay on food subsidies will be LE 26 billion this fiscal year, double the original LE 13 billion allocated in the FY 2010/11 budget.

Government Sector Strikes: Uniformed police in Naga Hammadi, Qena Governorate, demonstrated on March 5 for higher salaries. According to labor blogs they complained about police clerks and officers who only sit in comfortable offices and “terrorize the citizens.” Approximately 50 dismissed employees from the Mobile Ambulance Service gathered in front of the Giza police station today demanding that they be allowed to return to work. Temporary hires at the Supreme Council for Antiquities started an open strike today demanding permanent contracts, a minimum wage, and better bonuses. Fayoum Governorate employees started a strike today demanding dismissal of Fayoum Governor and all of his advisors, as well as extra-bonuses and permanent contracts. Employees at the Directorate of Organization and Administration in Marsa Matrouh staged a strike today demanding higher bonuses and permanent contracts. Local press reported that workers at the state-owned Damietta Water Company started an open strike today demanding dismissal of the company's board due to corruption and wasting of public funds. Late last week Military Factory No. 9 employees on temporary contracts started a hunger strike in Helwan demanding permanent employment.

Education strikes: Hundreds of public school teachers in ten governorates struck today against their low-standard of living and poor economic conditions. Teachers from 6th of October, Souhag, Ismailia, Aswan, Damietta, Dakahlia, Giza and Cairo participated. In Cairo 300 teachers participated in Maadi, with 100 more demonstrating in Zamalek. Egyptian press reported that a few hundred academic staff and employees at the Suez Canal University started a demonstration today demanding dismissal of all faculty deans who used to belong to the NDP, as well as increased wages and bonuses. Academic staff at Mansoura University organized a protest today demanding dismissal of the University President because of his NDP membership. "Al Ahram" reported that following protests the President of Zagazig University agreed to pay all University employees a half-month bonus.

Industry Strikes: A labor blog reported that 2,000 workers at the Shebein el-Koum Spinning and Weaving Factory in Menoufia went on strikes yesterday demanding a change in factory administration, rehiring of unfairly dismissed employees, and establishment of an LE 1,500 (USD 250) minimum wage. The "Workers Coordination Committee" at state-owned Petrotrade Company in Nasr City called for a strike today to protest delays in implementing ministerial decisions aimed at reforming workers' status. A labor blog reported that 600 early-retired workers at the Tura Cement Factory gathered today to demand health insurance benefits, threatening to increase the size of demonstrations until demands are met.
